

Background to Timothy Horne

Tim was raised on a mixed-use irrigation property outside of the small town of Finley in southern NSW.

Tim studied a Bachelor of Laws and a Bachelor of Commerce at Deakin University. He graduated from Law with Honours.

In 2007, Tim studied negotiation and dispute resolution, Space Law and International Commercial Litigation at Copenhagen University in Denmark.

In 2008 Tim commenced working with Gadens Lawyers where he completed his articulated clerkship before being subsequently admitted to practice law where he focused on banking and finance litigation.

In 2020, Tim opened Horne Legal in Sydney, NSW and has maintained a broad focus on agriculture and commercial disputes.

Tim has been invited to give evidence at several Parliamentary Inquiries with respect to water related issues in the Murray Darling Basin. He was integral in commencing (and advising) the current class action of water licence holders against the Murray Darling Basin Authority. He has experience working closely with state and federal politicians to help navigate this complicated area.

In 2022 Tim became a nationally accredited mediator overseen by the Mediation Standards Board in Australia.

In 2023, Horne Legal was awarded Best Agricultural Law Firm at the APAC Legal Awards 2023.

In addition to having a vast background in rural issues, Tim has experience across numerous commercial enterprises in both Australia and Mexico and clients based around the globe.

Tim is an experienced commercial litigator and involved in disputes such as:

- Rural issues and disputes;
- Commercial – finance disputes;
- Shareholder and corporate disputes;
- Wills and estates; and
- Sporting – such as appearing before the Victorian Racing Tribunal and NSW Racing Appeals Tribunal.

Other points of note

Tim speaks Spanish proficiently.

Tim has also been heavily involved in the development of the employee management and compliance platform, saucedit.com. It was a winner at the highly competitive Investible Games in 2020 and has provided Tim with invaluable experience in the technology and start-up sectors.
